Tribe's Lazer Zone fills need for Ada-area youth

ADA, Okla. - Lazer Zone Family Fun Center celebrated its already successful operation with official grand opening ceremonies Friday, Dec. 10 and Saturday, Dec. 11.

"We are so pleased the community can come and enjoy themselves and see this tremendous gift to the community," said Lazer Zone general manager Jeff Warmuth. "I call it a gift because in south central Oklahoma, and probably in the whole state of Oklahoma, there's really nothing like this facility that's got the bowling and the lazer tag, and the skating and the arcades and the eating places."

Evidence that Lazer Zone is indeed a unique facility is seen in the fact that a variety of families, churches and other groups from areas as diverse as Oklahoma City, Dallas, Atoka, Seminole, Coalgate, Sulphur, Davis and Fitzhugh to name a few have booked parties at the facility.

Locals also appreciate the facility, as more than 2,500 customers flock to Lazer Zone on an average Friday and more than 3,000 fill the facility on an average Saturday evening.

What really makes Lazer Zone unique is its successful combination of a variety of entertainment, technology and emphasis on customer service, according to Warmuth.

Whether skating in the 10,500-square-foot rink, bowling on one of the 24 lanes, playing one of the more than 70 games in the 5,000-square-foot arcade, or shooting it out with friends in the 5,000-square-foot lazer tag arena, technology enhances the entertainment experience at Lazer Zone.

"Just walking in you get all this neon lighting which is really neat," said Warmuth. "Then when we turn all that off and all we turn on is the black lights everything starts to glow and illuminate it seems that the energy level goes up ten notches. Energy just goes off the chart and it's really a fun thing."

Beyond the lighting in the facility as a whole, each venue has its own special features.

"In the lazer tag arena we've got fog systems, lighting systems and sound systems that really add to the fun," said Warmuth. "When you walk in there it's just pulsating. You can just feel the beat of the music and it's just a lot of fun."

"We've also got a great sound system in our skating area and lighting system," Warmuth continued. "Of course you've got the D.J. in there and they can adjust the lighting and adjust the music and they take requests. I think what's important is it's not a computer sound system where we just press ten tracks and play one after the other.

"We've got somebody there, so if somebody wants to roller skate to oldies and says can you play Elvis or play this or that, if we've got the CD, we'll play it."

Catering to the tastes of customers in the skating rink is just one confirmation of the high priority place on customer service at Lazer Zone.

A wide variety of daily specials are available, including free skating Monday through Friday from 3 to 6 p.m. to 25-cent bowling games Monday after 6 p.m and many more. Several diverse party packages are also available from birthday parties to corporate events and church lock-ins.

Selection and training of employees is another important element of Lazer Zone's success.

"I think we've got some of the best employees that Ada has to offer," said Warmuth. "We really like helping people. It's a lot of fun."

"We've hired a lot of teenagers. A lot of them are on their first time jobs ever. It's really fun to show them how exciting it can be to really care about them, because the customers give that back."

"These young kids are just electrified by that," he continued. "So they do even a better job next time they're with a customer. And it's a perfect opportunity for us to train and shape and mold young workers on how to do really good customer service focused and how to deliver a good product and how to take care of a customer."

Proof of the quality of the service and the caring nature of the employees comes in the story of Laverne Warren of Dallas, a visitor to Ada whose car broke down near the facility one dark night.

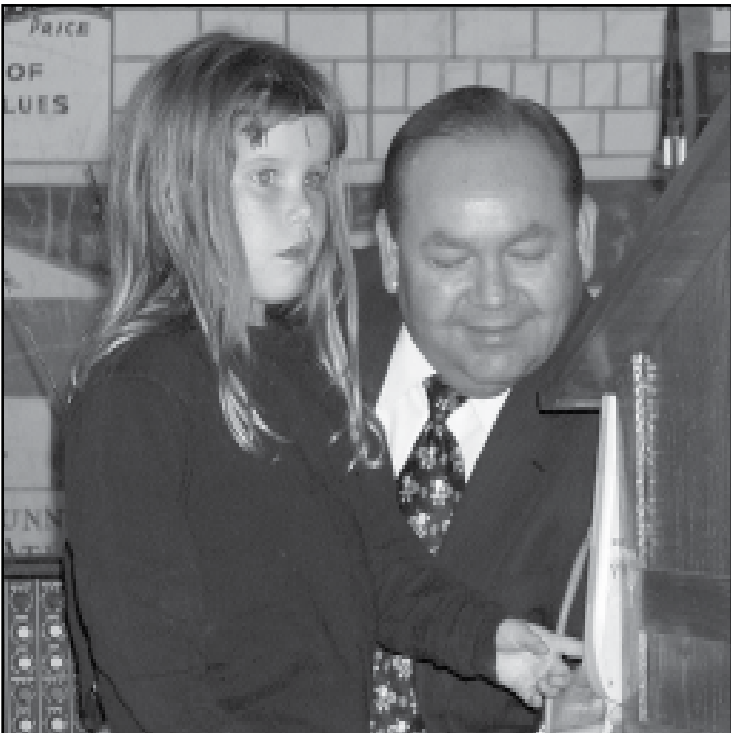

Several employees offered to help Mrs. Warren in various ways, including offering the use of a cell phone, locating a mechanic and escorting the woman to a nearby motel until her husband could come to pick her up the following morning.

"I believe I have met Ada's finest," said Mrs. Warren in a letter to Mr. Warmuth. "Thank you for your high standard for hiring. And thanks for the kindness that was shown to a total stranger, who was definitely stranded on unfamiliar turf."

"Your town can really be proud of an unusual team of people that work in an unusual place that evidently has set a very high standard for hiring their employees. I will never forget the kindness that was shown to me by the kindest most caring people I have had the pleasure of knowing in a long, long time."

Chickasaw heritage provides foundation of our achievements

In the 17th Century and a good portion of the 18th Century, the Chickasaw people were a prosperous, confident and happy people. They lived, often along the rivers, in what is now northern Mississippi, northwestern Alabama, western Tennessee and southwest Kentucky. While this was the Chickasaw homeland, Chickasaw parties would often set up camp as far away as modern-day South Carolina and Georgia.

The Chickasaw Nation was known for its warrior tradition and its superb hunting skills. The men were taught to be courageous, steadfast and persistent. It was written that Chickasaw men would run together during a hunt or other engagement for two and three hundred miles until success was achieved. Chickasaw women were resourceful, organized, hard working and attractive. Together, these men and women brought up strong families.

The Chickasaw Nation was not the largest or fastest-growing tribe in the Southeast. The Choctaws were probably four or five times larger, but the Chickasaws' acumen in battle kept other tribes at bay. To make up for lost population due to war or other event, the Chickasaws regularly took in other tribes or remnants of tribes living along Chickasaw borders. In one instance, the Chickasaws took in a group of Natchez Indians, who had met defeat in the 1730s at the hands of the French. These people, and many others, were welcomed into our tribe.

Of course, we all know of the pain of Removal in 1837, the struggle of our ancestors as they built new lives in Indian Territory, and the great assault on our tribe during the allotment period of the late 19th Century and early 20th Century.

What tremendous obstacles the Chickasaw people have overcome! Our tribal story is one of hope, of patience, of remembrance. We never capitulated or gave up hope of eventual success, just as our predecessors who would run hundreds of miles to achieve their goals knew never to give up.

When contact was made and visitors would write about the Chickasaws, their lives and their society. Those observers noted the fundamental strength of the tribe. We were referred to as "Spartans of the lower Mississippi," reflecting our military prowess and resourcefulness. We were "well-built people" who much preferred hunting to agricultural pursuits and watched our hunting lands carefully. Our women were "beautiful" and noted for their exceptional family and leadership skills.

It has served us well that we have a long tradition of self-confidence and self-sufficiency. From our history, we know that our ancestors consistently believed they could overcome almost anything and always reach that final goal that had been set.

How well our tribal heritage has served us all! From those times of both joy and sorrow – and the many times in between – our people learned that persistence in duty, belief in each other and the nurturing of strong families would always serve us well.

I often think of those Chickasaws who have come before us when I deliver a scholarship to a deserving Chickasaw student; when I cut the ribbon on a new senior nutrition site; when I welcome home a Chickasaw veteran. Each of these events, and countless others, remind each of us of the pride and sacrifice of previous Chickasaw generations.

For all of us Chickasaws, as we enter the fifth year of a new millennium, we can be very proud of who we are and where we are headed together. The old days may be over, but the foundation on which our tribe has been built will serve us for generations to come.

To all Chickasaw friends, may you and your family enjoy a blessed and joyous New Year!

Burris receives Health System Employee Excellence award

Joe Burris

Joe Burris is the December Chickasaw Nation Health System Employee Excellent Award winner.

Joe can always be counted to keep the Tishomingo Clinic clean and spotless! He will come to work early and stay late whenever the staff needs him, and will do this even without anyone asking him to make sure the work gets done.

Joe is always friendly, polite, and helpful toward the patients and family members, and respected by his co-workers. With the high volume of patients the clinic receives on a daily basis, keeping the clinic clean isn't an easy job, but Joe certainly steps up and accepts this challenge.

Thank you Joe for the great job you do each and everyday! Your friendliness, commitment to excellence, and dedication to our patients and staff is appreciated by all of us!

The December Team Excellence Award is presented to the Dietary Services staff at Carl Albert Indian Hospital.

The Dietary Services staff does an excellent job in providing food and meals to the staff, patients, and visitors at Carl Albert. They work as a team, and constantly looking at their services to see what they can do to make things better and more fun.

In the cafeteria, they have initiated "theme" days in the cafeteria such as the "50's" day with poodle skirts and bobby socks, Hawaiian day, and provide popcorn on alternating Fridays.

Everyone appreciates their efforts in decorating the cafeteria for the various holidays especially in providing a free meal on Thanksgiving, Christmas, and New Year's Day to staff and family members.

This isn't always provided to staff at other hospitals, and family members must find their own meals! Thanks to everyone in the Dietary Services Department, your friendliness, compassion, and caring for others is reflected in your smiles, and the work you do!

Special season makes us happy to be Chickasaw

Linda Briggs
Chairman
Chickasaw Tribal Legislature

Happy New Year to all of you!

Personally, I feel as if I blinked and 2004 flashed by. Then I start thinking about all the new projects we have begun and the ones completed and all the legislation we have worked on, some passed and some still being explored, as we try very hard to do the best possible job we can for the citizens of our Chickasaw Nation.

A lot of work and research goes into the legislation presented to our body even before it comes to us in the Legislature. Then, a lot more work is done as we place it in a committee for further study and consideration.

We anticipate a very busy year. All indications are that we will definitely not be disappointed. A large plus is a truly dedicated group of people on the Legislature representing you the Chickasaw people. It is forever our goal to do a good job for you, collectively and individually.

I hope the Christmas Season was a time of great joy and wonderful memories for all of you. A noteworthy series of events in the Chickasaw Nation was the Governor's Christmas parties for the Children. They were so much fun and the children were so excited. Especially they love the "countdown" for the turning on of the lights on the enormous Christmas trees. Several of the parties were held around the Chickasaw Nation in an effort that many of our children could attend and no child present could have enjoyed in more than those of us helping with it.

On December 2 I attended the 100th birthday celebration of a beautiful Chickasaw lady, Mrs. Edna Mae Hayward Goodin. And besides the pleasure that was mine in meeting and visiting with such a special lady the day turned into one of great note in my personal life - I became a great-grandmother for the first time the very same day. Miss Emily Elizabeth Briggs was born that day into a very happy and proud family. I told Mrs. Goodin it had to be a good day for a birthday because she was such a beautiful, wonderful lady!

For all of you this New Year I wish the reality of your dreams and great, good health! God bless you.

increasing activities with family members, or simply parking a few parking places further from our point of destination. Imagine how much you would walk in one year with that one activity.

Continue to work at healthy eating. Healthy eating is not something you acquire the taste for overnight (pardon the pun).

You have to know the food choices that are best for you. I have a family member who was recently diagnosed as a pre-diabetic, and I can attest to the changes that just one diabetic in the family can make to the entire family. With all of the teaching that we received, the point that continued to jump out is that with a healthy lifestyle, diabetes can be either prevented or slowed down simply by the choices that we make from day to day.

Find a partner or support person this year and determine to make some changes in your life. If you do that, we will all experience a better year. I would love to see each of you individually and greet you in this new year. May you be greatly blessed as we travel on in the year. Thank you all for your letters and calls over the past year. I look forward to hearing from you again.

Grant, scholarship application now on-line

Greetings and Happy New Year from Legislator Mary Jo Green, Seat 5, Pontotoc District and Chairman of the Health Care Committee! I look forward to serving you in 2005 and know that working together we can accomplish great things for our Chickasaw Nation.

Bill Lance, Administrator of the Chickasaw Health System has provided the following information for this month's report. The total number of hospitalizations at Carl Albert Indian Health Facility for November was 204 and a 9 month total (February through November, 2004) was 1,961. The number of outpatient visits at Carl Albert was 13,518 for November and 126,782 for the last 9 months. Emergency Room visits were 975 in November and 9,054 in the last 9 months. The number of surgeries for November was 203 and 2,136 for the last 9 months. The Same-day Clinic saw 2,902 patients in November and 24,947 in the last 9 months.

The Family Practice Clinic in Ada saw 3,781 patients in November and 40,984 in the last 9 months. The Ardmore Clinic saw 2,905 for November and 26,470 in the last 9 months. The Tishomingo Clinic saw 2,599 patients in November and 23,113 in the last 9 months. The Durant Clinic saw 2,389 patients in November and 22,387 in the last 9 months. The total number of patients seen by the new Purcell Clinic was 310 for October and 398 for November for a 2 month total of 708. I'm glad to see the numbers being reported for our new Purcell Clinic.

Mr. Lance also reported that flu vaccine is available for those who qualify under guidelines for the aged, children and those with chronic health conditions. We hope to receive additional vaccine in the near future so that the guidelines can be broadened.

The search for a full time doctor in Ardmore continues to be a top priority. A position is also open in Tishomingo for a dentist. Meanwhile, Carl Albert Hospital will staff those positions with Carl Albert doctors. The elder care clinic in Carl Albert Hospital will be located where the eye clinic is currently situated. The eye clinic will be removed to the area vacated by WIC.

Education Department reported that the application for all education grants and scholarships is now on-line at www.chickasaw.net. The new application appears to be more user friendly than in the past and I encourage all Chickasaw students to apply in a timely manner for education assistance. The Chickasaw Nation will be the host for the Johnston O'Malley (JOM) conference to be held in Tulsa on March 21-23, 2005.

New Year greetings to our servicemen and women

Wanda Blackwood Scott
Chickasaw Tribal Legislature

Chukma!

Warmest New Year greetings to all fellow Chickasaws. A special greeting to all our Chickasaw servicemen and women both stateside, in Iraq and elsewhere in the world.

My thanks to Governor Bill Anoatubby for ensuring my son's unit in Iraq had access to satellite telephones. These phones are a Godsend to the soldiers and others serving overseas. They work tremendously well and the communication among military families means so much.

Our son, Army Maj. Jimmie Scott, continues on assignment in Baghdad. It is a tough time, but we are blessed he will be visiting home for Christmas.

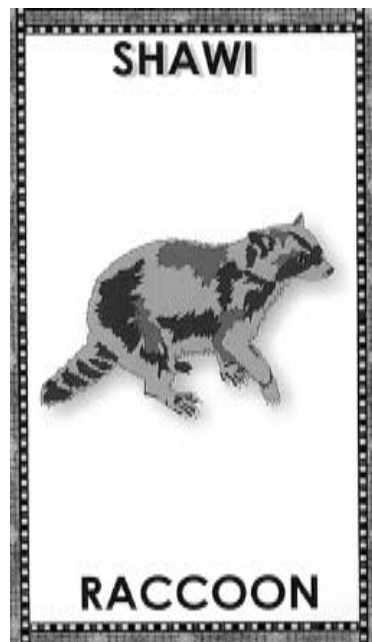

Thanks to all of you who have offered your prayers and concerns for our son, and for all the Chickasaws and other military people serving in Iraq and other danger spots. Thank you for being good Americans.

Thanks also to the Choctaw singers from the Ardmore site. The Choctaw singers recently sang at the funeral of a family member and they were wonderful.

Special New Year blessings to all Chickasaws, and to all who serve our great Chickasaw Nation.

HAPPY HOLIDAYS! What a wonderful year 2004 turned out to be for the Judicial Branch. We have had such a great time meeting and serving our Chickasaw citizens as well as other Native American friends. We appreciate the opportunity to serve each and every one of you.

I hope everyone has had the chance to attend the Governor's Christmas party near you. I attended the Christmas party in Sulphur and had a wonderful time. We sang Christmas carols, listened to the story, "The Night Before Christmas" and saw Santa.

The Judicial Branch hosted a "Milk and Cookies Day" for the Sulphur Head Start children on Wednesday, December 15, 2004. The Head Start children provided the Christmas tree ornaments for the Supreme Court and the District Court. The children toured the Chickasaw Nation Supreme Court to see their decorations on the tree and had milk and cookies after I read them "The Night before Christmas." We had a surprise visit from Santa who gave each little one a candy cane and promised to return on Christmas Eve with their other presents. Then the children loaded the buses and went to the District Court where they had a short tour to view their decorations on the Christmas tree there. We want to thank the teachers who worked so hard with the children to make the ornaments and for bringing them to see us in Ada. We had a great time with them and are delighted to be able to display their ornaments in our courts.

December 16, 2004, the Judicial Branch hosted an Open House at both the Supreme Court and the District Court. We enjoyed seeing so many of our associates and friends and sharing with them the renovations of both courts. With grant funds we were able to retain, Diana Walls, as a Decorator / facilitator to gather Chickasaw pieces to display in the courts as an effort to bring the Chickasaw culture into the courts. We are so proud of the Chickasaw artists who provided pieces for the courts.

Moccasin Trail recognizes first 1,000-mile walker

Moccasin Trail participant Lorne "Rastus" Love and Chickasaw Nation Moccasin Trail program director Anona McCullar.

Lorne "Rastus" Love recently received recognition for achieving the 1,000-mile level in the Chickasaw Nation Moccasin Trail program from program director Anona McCullar.

"I have a few cattle I feed every day and I just write the time down every day," said Mr. Love when asked how he managed to log 1,000 miles in just six months time.

"One day I had a cow down and I walked half a day tracking her down."

Logging time for such every day activities is one way participants in the program can earn T-shirts, shorts, gym bags, sports games, cookbooks, even walking shoes.

Participants in the Moccasin

Trail program earn "miles" by keeping a record of the number of minutes they exercise. A wide variety of activities, including walking, running, weight training, playing basketball, bicycling, bowling, gardening and more count toward total "miles." Participants receive a log book to record their progress as well as an abundance of material on proper diet and exercise.

More than 250 people are currently participating in the program, many of them seniors.

"Sometimes seniors will tell me they are too old to exercise," said McCullar. "I tell them there is always something they can do."

All ages can benefit from the program, and with the sharp rise in the incidence of type 2 diabetes among young people, one of McCullar's goals is to enroll more families..

Mr. Love, who prefers to be called Rastus, said he "breathes a little better" since he joined the program.

Making healthier choices can make a real difference in one's health, according to Ms. McCullar

"I tell people life is a matter of choices, so why not make healthier choices," said McCullar, who has lost more than 50 pounds since she made the move toward a healthier lifestyle several years ago.

Governor's Family Initiative

Children raised in strong families are much more likely to be happy, healthy and academically successful, while children from broken homes are more likely to live in poverty, be expelled from school or even wind up behind bars.

Because a strong, nurturing family environment has such a profound impact on the long-term health, happiness and success of young people, Chickasaw Nation Governor Bill Anoatubby has introduced "The Governor's Family Initiative."

This program provides several methods to help families grow stronger and function more effectively.

Native Americans in the Chickasaw Nation as well as Chickasaw Nation employees will have access to a number of opportunities to build relationship skills and educational opportunities to help make better life decisions.

Participants in the program will have the opportunity to attend Prevention Relationship and Enhancement Program (PREP) classes to help strengthen communication, and problem solving skills. These classes also help couples maintain their commitment by avoiding negative behaviors and understanding mutual expectations.

Fatherhood/accountability groups will focus on teaching men the skills necessary to be effective husbands and fathers.

The groups will address issues such as anger management, communication, parenting skills, responsibility, leadership and drug and alcohol resistance.

Single parent support groups will address the numerous difficulties faced by individuals raising children without the assistance of a spouse. Time management skills, maintaining discipline, and learning to access necessary support systems are among the topics covered.

Other services available include abstinence education and training as well as parenting classes for two-parent families.

Residential services will be expanded to offer a strong home to children and young people separated from their biological families.

These will include Chickasaw Children's Village, foster care and adoption programs, as well as a transitional living center for youth on the Carter Seminary campus.

Another facet of the Initiative is the Chickasaw Nation Youth Task Force. This group will include approximately 50 citizens from all walks of life who will prepare an annual condition on the condition of youth and opportunities provided for them through the Chickasaw Nation.

Tribal Vocational Rehabilitation awarded grants to assist disabled Indian workers

The Chickasaw Nation Vocational Rehabilitation Department was recently awarded two grant transferrals from the U.S. Department of Education to provide services statewide to Native Americans with disabilities.

The first grant is a Projects with Industries grant that will provide job development services to help Native Americans with disabilities in Oklahoma. The department will hire job developers in Ada, Tulsa and Oklahoma City with the funds received from the grant.

"This grant will provide services to Native Americans in the state of Oklahoma to help them attain or maintain employment," said Michelle Wilson, tribal vocational rehabilitation director.

The second grant is a Native American Vocational Services grant that will provide vocational rehabilitation services to Native Americans with disabilities statewide. This grant will focus on the use of video-phones to provide tele-therapy to consumers who need these services due to transportation or mobility issues.

The grant will allow the department to provide physical therapy, speech therapy, occupational therapy, mental health counseling, vocational rehabilitation counseling and a multitude of other services. To aid consumers, video phones will be placed in their homes and a video phone will be placed in the service provider's office.

"We hope to partner with various Chickasaw Nation departments to better provide these services," Wilson said.

In addition, vocational rehabilitation counselors will be hired in Ada, Oklahoma City and Tulsa to provide the services statewide.

Through these grants the tribe's vocational rehabilitation program hopes to partner with eight other tribal vocational rehabilitation programs and the State of Oklahoma Department of Rehabilitation Services.

Special Angel Trees

Hundreds of Christmas packages line three separate rooms at Carl Albert Hospital in Ada. This year over 200 Native American children were represented on the Carl Albert Behavioral Health Angel Tree. The generosity and love of Chickasaw people and Chickasaw Nation employees provided gifts to children who might not have otherwise received them. In addition to the gifts, parents of the children received a packet of information about parenting and holiday stress management. This tree was one of several angel trees across the Chickasaw Nation.

Encore, Encore!

Chickasaw Children's Choir performs at Southeastern

DURANT, Okla. - The Chickasaw Children's Choir recently opened for the Miss Indian SOSU Pageant during Southeastern Oklahoma State University's Native American Awareness Week.

"The crowd couldn't get enough of the choir," said Laura Morrison, tribal Arts in Education manager.

Following the choir's rehearsed routine, the crowd cheered the group on for an encore performance. The choir came back out on stage and sang additional songs.

A unique aspect of the Chickasaw Children's Choir is most songs include both Chickasaw and English. Many of the choir's songs are original songs written by David Ballard, a Chickasaw songwriter and employee of the tribe's multimedia department. Joann Ellis, with the tribe's cultural resources department, assists the choir by translating song lyrics into Chickasaw.

Some songs preformed by the choir include: Heroes, Legends and Dreams, I am the Future, Good Medicine, Native and American and the Star Spangled Banner.

The choir conductor is Reta Lansdale. Ms. Lansdale also serves as the elementary music teacher at Cottonwood school.

The Chickasaw Children's Choir consists of 50 kids from across the Chickasaw Nation. Over the past year, the choir has performed at the Chickasaw Annual Meeting, Artrain USA reception, the Jacobson House and at the Purcell Chautauqua.

"I am very proud of the kids," Morrison said. "The choir helps improve self esteem, character, social skills, helps with leadership development and preserves Chickasaw culture."

The Chickasaw Children's Choir has already been asked to perform at events next year. The choir will be the opening act at the Johnson-O'Malley State Banquet in Tulsa and perform at the Schools That Achieve to Raise Scholars (STARS) event in Ada.

Chickasaw Princess coordinator talks with Council of Elders

Submitted by Robert Perry for the Council of Elders

The Council of Elders met November 18 at the Marie Bailey Community Center in Ada. Toni Castleberry, Chickasaw Princess coordinator, was the guest speaker. Castleberry, a Chickasaw citizen, began her coordination role in August and discussed the process to select the 2004-2005 Chickasaw Princesses.

Princess candidates must be between ages 7 to 23, at least ° Chickasaw and predominantly Chickasaw. There are about 500 Chickasaw girls that meet these criteria within the Chickasaw Nation service area.

The princesses represent the Chickasaw Nation at many events, so the image they present are very important to how the entire tribe is seen by the general public.

The Council wanted to know if there are contest rules that define acceptable Indian regalia as Chickasaw design. Two restrictions were cited: (a) Chickasaw colors of red, blue and yellow are to be used (these colors were also recommended by COE) and (b) the Chickasaw Nation seal must be displayed on the princess shawl and sash.

The princess crowns are permanent, used by the girls during their year reign as princess. The permanent crown is passed on to the successor and each girl receives a memento crown of their own.

New princesses have been selected to reign in 2004-2005. This year's Chickasaw royalty include Chickasaw Princess Shelly Wall, 21, Junior Miss Chickasaw Tesia Worcester, 14, and Little Miss Chickasaw Sesiley Robertson, 11.

The Chickasaw Princesses follow a monthly calendar of events prepared by the coordinator, who limits the number of events. For example, the girls can't be out of school more than three days of any week. The girls are given two weeks notice to advise their schools when they will be absent. They have to be in class for four hours a day to avoid being counted absent, so many events are held in the evening. To be certain the girls arrive on time to each event, the coordinator offers rides. In addition, a dress code has been established for the princesses to perform duties as a tribal representative. If they are wearing the traditional dress with the sash emblazed with the tribal seal, the dress at all times must be respectful.

Castleberry addressed a question that the expense of making a princess dress might be a burden to some families. This year the Connerville Senior Citizen Site offered, as a site project, to sponsor the princesses and they made the fine regalia. Hopefully there will be additional interest in helping the Chickasaw Princesses in the future.

The elders pointed out it may be normal for young girls to be shy and have difficulty talking before a strange group of people. Castleberry observed this doesn't seem to be the norm for this year's princesses. They are all good speakers, she said.

In addition to taking the girls to observe the Miss Indian Oklahoma Pageant and Gathering of Nations Festival to choose Miss Indian World, she takes the girls to Chickasaw language classes offered by the cultural resources department.

Marie Beck told a story about her church group. There was a dying man who asked for someone to sing old songs as a last rite. With a week's notice, the Chickasaw Princesses came in their traditional dresses to Saddle Creek Presbyterian Church and preformed the Lord's Prayer in sign language. In addition, other Chickasaw ladies sang Choctaw hymns.

The Council of Elders recently went on a bus trip to the opening of the National Museum of American Indian (NMAI) in Washington D.C. The bus, painted with the Chickasaw warrior, makes a powerful statement when it arrives. Furthermore, people stepping out of the bus wearing their red jackets also make a strong statement. On this idea, COE agreed to determine the costs and provide four jackets for the three princesses and princess coordinator to wear on trips when representing the Chickasaw Nation.

For more information about the Chickasaw Princesses, contact Toni Castleberry at (580) 310-6620.

In other news, Kirk Perry discussed the opening of the new Midwest and Southeastern art exhibit "Hero, Hawk and Open Hand" at the Art Institute of Chicago. Later, the exhibit will go to St. Louis and NMAI in Washington D.C.

The meeting was topped off with door prizes awarded to Catherine Wood, Bob Perry, Shirley Duncan and Lorene Greenwood. Choctaw hymns were harmoniously sung by Pauline Brown, Marie Beck and Winnie McNeely. This was followed by a grand Thanksgiving feast.

'Every Day is a Good Day' reviewed

Imagine having the chance to draw on the wisdom, experience and unique perspective of a diverse group of educated, thoughtful and imaginative Native American women from all walks of life.

That is exactly what is presented in Every day is a good day, Reflections by Contemporary Indian Women.

Author, activist and former chief of the Cherokee Nation Wilma Mankiller weaves the voices of 20 interesting, intelligent women into discussions of topics from tribal government to ceremony, love and acceptance and womanhood, among others.

While the essays are drawn from separate interviews, the reader gets a sense of interaction between the women similar to what one might experience at an actual physical gathering.

An appropriate alteration of the war cry "it's a good day to die," Every day is a good day expands the notion that certain values and ideals are worth dying for to include the idea that those same values and ideals should be a guide for everyday life.

Writers, musicians, professors, ranchers, political activists and many others offer a wide variety of views on the topics covered.

Because such a wide variety of viewpoints are included, no reader will agree with every thought conveyed. Every reader, however, will undoubtedly find new insights on life's difficulties, joys and relationships, as well as confirmation of wisdom gained through one's own ex-

In the chapter titled "Context is Everything," Ms. Mankiller writes "The knowledge and culture of the world's indigenous people hold many potential gifts for the world. "One of the most important challenges of our time is to figure out the best way to capture and maintain traditional knowledge systems."

This work, which allows these women to speak directly to the reader, does just that as it opens a window not only to their thoughts, but perhaps more importantly, to their way of thinking about the world.

Chickasaw language revitalization plan starting up

“The Chickasaw language is currently spoken by a relatively small number of older persons. The language is in danger of being lost unless steps are taken to revitalize it,” wrote Dr. William J. Pulte in a recent proposed plan to help revitalize the Chickasaw language.

Dr. Pulte is one of two highly-qualified linguists who will offer instruction on teaching theory and language curriculum development at Murray State College, Tishomingo, Okla., beginning February 19 in the initial stages of a long-term plan to revitalize the Chickasaw language.

Dr. Durbin Feeling and Dr. Pulte will teach the course designed to give language facilitators the knowledge of teaching theory and curriculum development needed to help design community-based Chickasaw language classes.

Language facilitators will team with fluent Chickasaw speakers as paid employees who will design and teach classes for two different groups.

Classes will be designed to help those who understand and speak some Chickasaw to become to become fluent speakers.

As the number of proficient speakers increases, the scope and number of classes can be increased.

Classes will structured to teach Chickasaw to those with no knowledge of the language, and will be tailored to age ranges from pre-kindergarten, grade school, high school and adults.

These classes should complement each other as parents learn to talk to their Head Start through college age children.

Current plans are to continue offering language classes for language facilitators who will team with fluent speakers to teach community-based classes on an ongoing basis.

Classes will also be expanded to offerings from kindergarten through college with consideration being given to someday beginning a language immersion program similar to the one that has helped the Cherokee Nation develop dozens of pre-kindergarten-age fluent speakers.

Dr. Feeling has more than 25 years experience planning and teaching Cherokee courses in northeastern Oklahoma and is a leader among Native American language specialists.

Dr. Pulte is the author of a pioneering study of Chickasaws that pointed out for the first time significant differences between the Chickasaw and Choctaw languages. He is a nationally known linguist who specializes in the study of Native American languages and has worked with bilingual programs serving Cherokee, Choctaw and Spanish speaking students.

Language facilitators needed

Language facilitators and fluent Chickasaw speakers are being sought for a plan to revitalize and preserve the Chickasaw language.

A class in language teaching methods will be offered through Murray State College six Saturdays beginning February 19.

This class is designed to provide language facilitators with the knowledge and skills needed to work with fluent speakers in offering community based language classes beginning in summer 2005.

Several paid positions are being created for fluent speakers of Chickasaw and language facilitators who will pair up as teaching teams in various communities across the Chickasaw Nation.

These community-based classes will be open to the public at no charge.

Ideal candidates for language facilitators will have some knowledge of Chickasaw and some teaching experience.

A teaching certificate is not required and teaching experience can be as informal as teaching a Sunday school class or as formal as classroom teaching. For information, contact Terri Haney at (580) 332-8478.

The January 4 meeting will be about higher education for all American Indian students. There will be speakers from the Chickasaw and Choctaw Education departments. There will also be information from other tribes about scholarships and applications. Especially invited are students, parents, and grandparents.

At these meetings, you can also pick up information on how to apply for a CDIB card and application forms with family tree charts and “how to” follow your family tree. First, people have to know what kind of American Indian they are and have as many names of ancestors as possible for the family tree, especially the names of those who were living in Oklahoma from 1897 to 1905.

The February 1 meeting will have a guest singer, Seminole John Holt, who has sung with several symphony orchestras, in the Navy Choir, and with other professional groups. All American Indians and their families are invited to this meeting also. No CDIB card is needed. Watch you local papers for the location.

Carl Albert employees gain specialist status

Carl Albert Indian Hospital employees Rhonda Harjo and Cathy Hendershot recently passed the Certified Coding Specialist (CCS) test.

Certified Coding Specialists are professionals skilled in classifying medical data from patient records.

"I am very proud of Rhonda and Cathy for this great achievement," said Jerri Martin, tribal health information manager. "All health care facilities strive to hire CCS certified coders. °These ladies are experts in their field."

According to the American Health Information Management Association, coding practitioners review patients' records and assign numeric codes for each diagnosis and procedure. In order to perform this task, the practitioners must possess expertise in the ICD-9-CM coding system and surgery section within the CPT coding system. In addition, the Certified Coding Specialist is knowledgeable of medical terminology, disease processes and pharmacology.

The CCS credential demonstrates quality and integrity skills in a coding practitioner. The CCS certification exam assesses mastery and proficiency in coding.

Hospitals of medical providers report coded data to insurance companies or the government in the case of Medicare and Medicaid recipients, for reimbursement of their expenses. °Research and public health officials also use coded medical data to monitor patterns and explore new interventions. Coding accuracy is highly important to health care organizations because of its impact on revenues and describing health outcomes.

"By being employees of the Chickasaw Nation Health System, they bring this expertise to our health care setting which contributes to providing good patient care," said Martin. "We are very fortunate to have these ladies on our team."

Hendershot also holds a bachelor's degree in health information management and has earned the credentials of Registered Records Administrator.

Carl Albert Hospital hosts international health care workers

ADA, Okla. - Seven health care professionals from Africa visited Carl Albert Indian Hospital (CAIH) December 10 to discuss combating infectious diseases. Carl Albert was the one tribal health system visited while the guests were in the United States.

The international visitors are among those responsible for helping formulate and implement public health policies that will stem the spread of infectious disease.

While at CAIH, the visitors had a lengthy conversation, via translators, with several hospital employees about the low rate of HIV and AIDS patients in south central Oklahoma. The group also discussed diabetes and hepatitis C.

"We're thrilled Carl Albert has been chosen the last few years to host the international health care leaders," Chickasaw Nation Governor Bill Anoatubby said. "This speaks volumes for our health system."

"Our health system is undoubtedly one of, if not the best, health care provider available in Indian Country," Gov. Anoatubby said. "This, in many ways, is the result of the quality of physicians and employees that we have, as well as the broad range of programs and services that we offer."

"Carl Albert was chosen because of the wonderful reception the physicians and staff have offered to other international health care workers who have visited there in the past," said Kay Bickham, Executive Director of the International Visitors

Council of Greater Oklahoma City. "It is one of the highlights of their visit to the United States."

Each visitor was presented with a Chickasaw Nation seal lapel pin and two postcards, one about Oklahoma and the other about the Chickasaw Nation.

"It's an honor to have you here," Sandi Sanders, tribal health systems chief operating officer, told the visitors.

Following the discussion, the visitors were taken on a tour of the Carl Albert facility by Debbie Jackson, tribal customer relations, and Heather Summers, tribal patient services director.

The International Visitor Program is sponsored by the United States Department of State.

'Its About Money' Chickasaw 'Seventh Generation' will soon be leaders of our tribe

J.D. Colbert

By J.D. COLBERT

To go or not to go? To sign the Treaty or not sign the Treaty? These and many other tough decisions faced the Chickasaw people and our leaders during the turbulent and trying times of the 1830s.

The settlers of a young U.S. had cast their covetous eyes upon the lands of the indigenous peoples of the south and southeastern portion of the country. In response, the federal government and the various states adopted a policy of forced removal of tribes of the southeastern region.

So it was that the Chickasaw people were confronted with the momentous decision as to whether to move west. In their deliberations, the Chickasaws of the 1830s gave a great deal of thought to the impact that their decision would have on the Seventh Generation. Such is the way of the Chickasaws and of many Indian people.

The Seventh Generation of Chickasaws who were so thoughtfully considered by our leaders of the 1830s are now in their infancy. Others of the Seventh Generation will soon be born in the next few years.

Those of us Chickasaws of the 5th and 6th generations have the enormous responsibility to love, to care for and to nurture the members of the Seventh Generation. One way to provide and care for this generation is to prepare for their future educational needs.

Parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles and others may do so by setting up an Educational IRA. You may contribute up to $500 a year for each child. Contributions are not deductible but amounts contributed grow tax free until withdrawn. Funds may be withdrawn to pay higher education expenses of the child.

As we are blessed with the members of the Seventh Generation, so too are they blessed to be born into the tribe at a time of unprecedented prosperity of the Chickasaw tribe and its members. As part of our responsibility toward this generation, let's set aside a portion of our current wealth for their future educational needs. Let's make the Seventh Generation the greatest generation in the long and distinguished history of the Chickasaw people.

Lazer Zone offers solution to common dilemma

"Mom, there's nothing to do!"

How often have mothers throughout small-town America heard that refrain from their children?

Chickasaw Enterprises set out to solve this universal dilemma with the October opening of the Lazer Zone Family Fun Center in Ada, Okla.

"We envisioned a place where kids and families could go, have a terrific, enjoyable evening, and go away satisfied," Chickasaw Enterprises CEO Brian Campbell said.

"The way things are starting out at Lazer Zone, I think we have hit the mark and made a real and positive difference in our community."

Lazer Zone, located adjacent to the Ada Travel Stop in west Ada, is the newest Chickasaw Enterprises facility. Featuring bowling, skating, laser tag, video arcade and more, Lazer Zone is the dynamic new place for young people in and around Ada.

With no initial advertising or marketing efforts, Lazer Zone opened October 9 and hosted more than 3,100 customers from 10 a.m. until midnight. Kids entered the building wide-eyed and soon were caught up in the exciting atmosphere.

"We have lots of kids coming in to meet their friends and enjoy the facility," Lazer Zone general manager Jeff Warmuth said.

"Lazer Zone is such a welcome option for kids who have previously spent time driving around or meeting in parking lots. It offers clean, wholesome, enjoyable activities for the entire family."

The 60,000-square-foot facility is packed full of sights, sounds and smells to please the senses. Music flows from the bowling lanes as neon frames the lanes and black lights illuminate the star-theme carpet and bowling balls. Bowlers can choose from many offerings on the bank of wide screen televisions near the seating area. Skaters can enjoy a huge screen television as they skate to the sounds of the latest pop hits, and arcade fans are inundated with the classic pinball and new machine sounds.

A casual observer soon notices the many surrounding communities represented by the high school mascots emblazoned on customers' t-shirts. It is evident Lazer Zone is drawing from markets on the edge of its 60-mile radius target area.

"We're pleased with the rollout," Campbell said.

"We all look forward to many years of serving kids and their families in the Ada area."

Convenience, speed of technology enhances Lazer Zone experience

Multiple layers of technology make sure America's newest generation is comfortable and "tuned in" at Lazer Zone.

The first layer is the "customer facing" layer, which includes music, lighting, equipment and the outside lighted portico and signage. Next, and key to keeping kids enjoying the games, is the Lazer Zone card swiping system. Customers who enter Lazer Zone may apply cash to a Lazer Zone card. The card may be swiped at all the entertainment locations for quick access to play. Three well-placed kiosks allow customers to "recharge" their cards by inserting currency and their card. The customer is back in action in seconds.

"We have learned that today's kids want convenience and they want things to happen in rapid succession," Lazer Zone general manager Jeff Warmuth said.

The next layer of technology is the "business facing" layer, which is based on the on-site computer server. Lazer Zone employees utilize touch-screen menus to quickly and efficiently complete transactions with customers and set customers up for their next experience. Speed and accuracy are prized by both customer and worker.

A wireless communication system is also in effect for some Lazer Zone games and the bowling lanes. With the wireless system, customers can play games, swipe their cards and enjoy the fun without any computer server cables or power plugs.

Lazer Zone maintains a 750-kva, diesel-powered generator for use in the event of a power failure.

For Lazer Zone customers, the action can be just about as fast as they like. And for most kids today, the faster, the better!

Wow! describes initial visit to Ada's Lazer Zone

Wow!

That single acclimation describes the reactions by management, workers, customers and parents - all about Chickasaw Enterprises' newest facility, the Lazer Zone Family Fun Center in Ada, Okla.

Lazer Zone is the 60,000-square-foot family entertainment facility that features bowling, skating, laser tag, arcade games, party rooms - and a bushel basket of sensory experiences that keep customers coming back for more.

"We are extremely pleased to provide a wholesome, safe and entertaining center for families in the Ada area," Gov. Bill Anoatubby said.

And judging from the initial turnout for Lazer Zone, Ada-area kids and their families find the facility a great place for all kinds of activities.

"Young people come through our doors and it's like Christmas morning," Lazer Zone general manager Jeff Warmuth said.

"You can tell from the number of kids and their reactions that Lazer Zone is providing a great service to the community."

With 24 lanes of bowling, a rollerskating and rollerblading rink, a laser tag area, video arcade, party rooms, and concessions - all intertwined with appealing neon, black light, pop music and banks of tv screens - Lazer Zone is an entertainment and sensory delight designed for the "younger set."

"Parents love it, too," Warmuth is quick to point out.

"They appreciate that we have created a safe and clean environment for their children."

And clean it is! Lazer Zone employees, 130 strong, are diligent about keeping the facility spotless, safe and welcoming. A customer will not see a dirty plate, cup or other refuse on a tabletop, floor or counter for more than a few seconds. Lazer Zone employees are trained to take care of the facility quickly and efficiently.

Lazer Zone not only fulfills a real community need, but also is projected to be a long-term, profitable business for Chickasaw Enterprises. The facility projects first-year revenue at approximately $3 million, and that figure is before targeted marketing efforts really take hold.

Almost 75 percent of Lazer Zone employees are Native American, and most of those workers are Chickasaw. Management works hard to seek out and employ Chickasaws who are interested in working at Lazer Zone.

John said the training he received prior to Lazer Zone opening was helpful.

The Colberts and Chickasaw Leadership, Part III: Land Cessions of 1816 and 1818

By RICHARD GREEN
Contributing Writer

Author's Note: The Colbert brothers grew up observing and learning from their father, the dynamic trader and military officer James Colbert. But they also learned from their Chickasaw mothers and families as well as two generations of full-blood leaders including Piomingo and Ugulaycabe. This first generation of Colbert sons, William, George, Levi and James, had become tribal leaders at the beginning of the 19th century—as the U.S. prepared to appropriate the Indian land in the southeast.

In the first decade of the 19th century, George Colbert continued to lead tribal affairs as principal chief as he developed his farming operation and his ferry service and inn near the junction of the Natchez Trace and the Tennessee River. Colbert was reputedly the wealthiest Chickasaw of the time. He cultivated about 350 acres, and owned at least 40 slaves. He collected ferry-service fees at the Tennessee River from all non-Indians traveling the Trace en route north toward Nashville or south toward Natchez. Near his ferry crossing, he built, with American aid in 1806, a two-story frame house with glass windows that lasted until 1929 when it was destroyed by fire.

From Americans who knew him, we get a few, brief descriptions of the man, but they are so culturally biased that they probably say more about the descriptors than the described. A Methodist preacher found Colbert to be very shrewd and talented, but also very wicked because he had two wives (as did many Chickasaw men.) Those wives were daughters of Cherokee Chief Doublehead. The marriages probably were arranged for political or diplomatic reasons, as was common then among chiefs building alliances. American physician Rush Nutt said of Colbert in 1805 that he displayed genius, but was an “artful designing man.” A U.S. official described him as “extremely mercenary,” and one who “takes on great airs.” These descriptions suggest that George Colbert couldn’t be controlled as well as the Americans would have liked. American agent to the Chickasaw, James Robertson said it would be unwise and ineffective to try to “shake his popularity.”

George’s appearance and thinking reflected his mixed-blood heritage, according to these American sources. He had Indian features but lighter skin. He wore American clothes but his hair was long. In an 1841 interview, former tribal translator Malcolm McGee recalled that Colbert persuaded the council to end the traditional tribal law of exacting blood revenge for the murder of a clan member. If true, this would be a watershed in tribal history because it would have revoked the custom that had perpetuated tribal warfare throughout the ages. (This would have been possible only during an extended time of peace, as was the case after the Chickasaw-Creek war ended in 1798.) On the other hand, Colbert told a Methodist minister in 1807 that white men are “worse than Indians everywhere. The Indians never knew how to steal, get drunk or swear until the white man learned them. We want no preaching in our country. We are free, and intend to keep so.”

Undoubtedly, he meant what he said in 1807, but a flow of white intruders was settling on the southeastern Chickasaw lands along the Tombigbee River. At first, the tribe refrained from evicting them, seeking to avoid war with the U.S. But by 1809, George Colbert announced that if the U.S. didn’t remove intruders from their land, the Chickasaw would attack and burn down their homes. U.S. officials acted to pacify the angry Chickasaw, but the American’s actions were ineffective. Those settlers who were removed found no impediment to returning. More often, the U.S. either disallowed or ignored the tribe’s complaints and requests about intruders.

Tecumseh

At about this time, the Shawnee leader Tecumseh visited the Chickasaw to request that the tribe join a tribal confederation to resist further loss of tribal lands and the encroachment of Americans. The Colbert brothers were not impressed. Though Tecumseh’s words might have appealed to a warrior like William Colbert, he, as a long-time friend of the U.S., was not persuaded. His brother, George, rejected Tecumseh’s proposal for two reasons, according to the Ph.D. dissertation of Ronald Craig. As a member of the confederacy, the Chickasaw would be fighting a war it did not want (and could not win) with the U.S. And most of the tribes in Tecumseh’s confederation were long-time enemies of the Chickasaw.

The Chickasaw council renewed its demand in 1816 that white settlers (at least 300 families) be removed from the southeastern part of their land. Many of them had been stealing and killing livestock. Though George Colbert sometimes participated in talks with the federal government or other tribes, he no longer spoke for the Chickasaw, having relinquished his position as principal chief in 1812. So, the tribe’s designated speaker, Tishomingo, threatened to go to war against the American settlers. “If blood is spilled it will not be our fault,” he said. Also in 1816, the Colbert brothers, Tishomingo and other leaders asked the U.S. agent to the Chickasaw to remove all traders from Chickasaw country. When agent Cocke replied that only Congress could do that, Tishomingo said that the Chickasaws would relieve them of their goods if they remained.

At this unsettled point, the U.S. called for a meeting to discuss another land cession. If the Chickasaw could not and the U.S. would not protect Chickasaw land from intruders, clearly a meeting was in order to avoid bloodshed. Not only were white intruders a growing problem, but the problem was further complicated by a long-time dispute between the Chickasaw and Cherokee over the boundary between the nations on and near the Tennessee River in northwest Alabama. The U.S. was advancing the self-serving presumption that if the Chickasaw would not sell land in the area to the U.S., the Cherokee might. Thus, U.S. officials offered the absurd proposition that buying Indian land would prevent Indian wars. The president appointed a commission led by General Andrew Jackson, whose forces defeated the British at the 1815 Battle of New Orleans and the Creek Red Stick faction in 1813. Jackson asked the Chickasaw, Choctaw and Cherokee to meet the commissioners in Nashville to negotiate separate treaties. Speaking for the Chickasaw, James Colbert replied that the tribe would only meet the U.S. commissioners in Chickasaw country because land cessions needed the people’s approval. When the U.S. agreed, everyone met at the Chickasaw Council House near Pontotoc, MS. Former archaeologist James Atkinson wrote that apparently the council house and George Colbert’s new house were one and the same.

1816 Land Cession

Since the Colbert brothers and many other Chickasaw had fought with Gen. Jackson against the Red Sticks, tribal leaders might have expected fair treatment. Instead, Jackson brushed aside Tishomingo who showed him the charter signed by Pres. Washington in 1794, guaranteeing them their land. Jackson told them bluntly that they had to become farmers, “the hunt is over, the game is gone.” The leadership informed Jackson that a general council of all tribal members must be held to discuss treaty terms and that no treaty could be signed without a consensus. Several days went by with the Chickasaws and Americans meeting separately. Then, the Americans made an offer, which the tribe rejected. Jackson fumed, and wrote in his secret journal that the leadership would have to be bribed. (Though he didn’t use that word, bribery was his intent.) He wrote that $4,500 in “presents” were to be paid to “the influential chiefs” (four Colberts and Tishomingo) upon the “success of the negotiations.” When and if that money was paid is not known. Another $4,500 was earmarked as reimbursement for improvements made to certain tracts of the land ceded in 1816. But it was not paid until 1818, and the receipt was made out to Levi Colbert. No other related documentation has come to light, so whether Levi kept the money or distributed it to the appropriate tribal members is not known. Furthermore, certain tracts of land from the 1816 cession were reserved for the use of Levi and George, John McClish and a full-blood chief, Apassantubby.

After twelve days of negotiation in September, the U.S. and Chickasaw signed a treaty in which the U.S. agreed to pay the tribe $12,000 annually for 10 years for about 400,000 acres of land in south central Tennessee and most of northwest Alabama. Levi Colbert, who had replaced his brother as chief tribal representative, was a negotiator as adept as George, whose counsel was still available. That is why the commissioners reserved land grants to the Colbert brothers. Two years later, Andrew Jackson and a partner secretly paid $20,000 to buy the tracts of land as a bargaining tool with the Chickasaw in 1818. While this may seem to be a bribe, historian Ronald Craig notes that while the tracts could be used by the Colberts, all land (including these reserves) was owned by the tribe. So, money received for land belonged to the tribe.

The 1816 cession was only a portion of the land that the commissioners were sent to obtain. But it was a necessary first step toward getting the rest two years later when Jackson pressed for some seven million acres in western Tennessee and Kentucky. The Chickasaw leadership told him the tribe had no land to sell. Jackson replied that if they did not meet with the commissioners, the Congress was empowered under the 1786 Treaty of Hopewell to take the land. While this was untrue, the Chickasaw apparently had no copy of the treaty and couldn’t be sure. Then, Jackson unscrupulously dangled as bait the as yet unpaid proceeds from the first annuities of 1816-17. The Chickasaw reluctantly agreed to meet; the meeting was held at Old Town, which had been occupied by the Chickasaw throughout the 18th century. While the Chickasaw were arriving, the U.S. conducted a census, counting some 5,300 Chickasaw people.

1818 Land Cession

The annuity payments and gifts totaling $31,000 finally arrived, almost two years late, and the money was given to the tribe’s four district chiefs for

USDA conservation funds available for some Chickasaw Nation trust lands

Financial assistance for installing conservation practices on trust and restricted lands is now available through the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS). The Environmental Quality Incentive Program (EQIP) is the primary cost share program in the 2002 Farm Bill to help owners and operators of Americas working lands implement practices to improve the condition of their natural resources.

Funding has been designated for trust and restricted land within the Chickasaw Nation. The primary natural resource issues to be addressed are brush encroachment on grazinglands, controlling the invasion of noxious weeds such as sericea lespe-deza and musk thistle, installing practices to facilitate grazing management, and to reduce soil loss by correcting actively eroding gullies. Other concerns that may be addressed are improving wildlife habitat and practices to help balance forage and livestock numbers.

Targeted lands are any tribal owned land and individual lands that fall within the Chickasaw Nation. Land adjoining these lands, up to one half mile, may also be eligible if management of these lands would contribute to the betterment of natural resources on the targeted land. Lands must be in some type of agricultural production and there are person eligibility requirements.

Owners or lessees are eligible to apply. All management plans must be approved by the Bureau of Indian Affairs. To apply, contact the NRCS Tribal Resource Conservationist in Ada. The office is located at 1629 N. Broadway in the Chickasaw Nation

Housing Annex, across from the Pontotoc County Agriplex. The telephone number is (580) 272-5479. Information you will need will be proof of ownership or lease and a legal description or location of the property. You may also apply at your USDA County Service Center. Applications will be forwarded to the Tribal Resource Conservationist. Applications will be taken on a continuous basis, but only applications received by March 1, 2005 will be evaluated for this program year.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) prohibits discrimination in all its programs and activities on the basis of race, color, national origin, gender, religion, age, disability, politi-

Persons with disabilities who require alternative means for communication of program information (Braille, large print, audiotope, etc) should contact USDA's TARGET Center at 202-720-2600 (voice and TDD).

To file a complaint of discrimination, write USDA, Director, Office of Civil Rights, Room 326W, Whitten Building, 14th and Independence Avenue, SW, Washington D.C. 20250-9410 or call 202-720-5964 (voice or TDD). USDA is an equal opportunity provider and employer.

Local National Night Out celebration recognized as one of nation's best Tribal Youth and Family Services employees Deanna Kendall, Shawna Jackson and Danny Wall display this year's NNO plaque.

The National Association of Town Watch recently announced Ada had been selected as a National Award Winner for its outstanding participation in the 21st Annual National Night Out (NNO) crime, drug and violence prevention program.

The Ada event was sponsored by the Chickasaw Nation, along with East Central University.

There were hundreds of entries in Ada's category, which includes towns with population 15,000 to 49,999. Ada's population is about 16,000.

SBA program to train Indian companies in forest restoration

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The U.S. Small Business Administration will assist in the economic development of Native American small businesses by supporting the creation of 20 firms that will reduce wild land fire risks to people, communities and the environment.

The establishment of these Native American firms is part of SBA's implementation of the President Bush's Healthy Forests Initiative, designed to reduce the threat of destructive wildfires to the nation's forests, communities and endangered species. The President's initiative has prompted forest restoration projects that include clearing forests of underbrush and trees to improve forest health and to benefit surrounding communities.

"The President has made forest health a high priority, and will continue to promote forest conservation and restoration,"

Hector V. Barreto, SBA Administrator said. "Under the Healthy Forests Initiative, this Administration has acted to remove the causes of severe wildfires by thinning forest undergrowth before disaster strikes, and the development of Native-American small business ownership will help to ensure a healthy environment and continued economic growth and job creation."

The Healthy Forests Initiative allows federal agencies to enter into long-term contracts with small businesses, communities and nonprofit organizations to reduce wildfire risk and improve forest health. This effort establishes a framework for protecting communities and the environment through thinning, planned burns and restoration projects.

The SBA recently contracted with the Intertribal Information Technology Co. (IITC), to develop and train 20 Native American forest restoration companies that will participate in forest restoration and preservation. The IITC is a multi-tribal 8(a) firm teamed together to build information technology business on Native American lands, and is an advocate for reservation economic development.

The IITC will help to establish the forest restoration companies, as well as help the firms to bid on Healthy Forests Initiative contracts with the federal government. The creation of these Native-American owned reservation-based companies is vital to the advancement of forest restoration projects, and will help to reduce fire danger and return the nation's forests and rangelands to a healthier state.

Nearly 50 percent of all forest fire fighters in the nation are Native Americans. Participation in forest restoration contracts would provide Native American fire fighters with year-round employment and spur entrepreneurialism in American Indian tribal areas. In the past two years alone, more than 147,000 fires burned nearly 11 million acres in the country.

For more information on Native American business development through the Healthy Forests Initiative project, contact project director Malcolm Bowekaty with the IITC at 505-870-3363.

Disaster drill helps Carl Albert Hospital prepare for 'real thing'

ADA, Okla. - More than a dozen "survivors" of a recent chemical explosion at the Pontotoc County Technology Center were transported to Carl Albert Indian Hospital, while one "fatality" was picked up at the site by a local funeral home.

Emergency workers arriving on the scene established a triage area to ensure those most seriously injured were the first to receive care.

Those injured too seriously to walk were carried on stretchers to a decontamination area established by Ada firefighters while Chickasaw Nation Lighthorse

Police officers controlled crowd members anxious to check on relatives injured in the blast.

Victims still able to walk were directed to the decontamination area where they were flushed with water to remove any traces of dangerous chemicals.

All victims were transported by Chickasaw Nation and Valley View Regional Hospital emergency medical services teams to Carl Albert, where hospital staff treated their injuries.

Rolling Hills Hospital staff members were on hand throughout to help deal with victims who became belligerent or exhibited other behavioral problems due to chemical exposure.

A command center established at Carl Albert worked to coordinate the efforts of the various agencies involved in dealing with the emergency situation.

Volunteers with the Ada chapter of the American Red Cross were also on hand to offer assistance as needed.

This was the scene of a recent disaster preparedness drill conducted by Carl Albert, which included cooperation with the Chickasaw Lighthorse Police, Ada Fire Department, Valley View Regional Hospital Emergency Medical Services, the American Red Cross, Pontotoc County Technology Center and Rolling Hills Hospital.

Mike Coplin, safety officer at Carl Albert, directed the drill as part of the hospital's Joint Commission certification.

"I think the drill went really well," said Coplin. "It's very important for us to work together as a community in situations such as this."

"While the possibility of a terrorist attack in Ada is small, a drill like this can be very helpful in preparing for a tornado or other emergency."

disbursement to tribal members. Now, the more than 300 Chickasaw who were on hand were ready to listen to the commissioners' proposal. Jackson spoke bluntly. He told the Chickasaw that the land they claimed in what is now western Tennessee and Kentucky actually had been sold to white land speculators by North Carolina and Virginia 35 years before to pay their Revolutionary War debts. The American presidents, Jackson said, with apparently a straight face, had "allowed the red men to hunt the land. Now that the 'Chickasaw had killed all the game, making the land worthless to them," Jackson said the land should be relinquished.

Nevertheless, he continued, President James Monroe (presumably out of the goodness of his heart) would be willing to trade their land for land to the west or pay the tribe for their land. Jackson said if the Chickasaw refused, the land would be taken over by "your white brethren." The Chickasaw retired to George Colbert's house to discuss their options. Despite Jackson's intimidation, there was substantial resistance for exchanging or selling the land. Hanging over the assembly was the explicit threat issued by some tribal members that leaders who sold or exchanged Chickasaw land would be assassinated. Bribes or Gifts?

At this point, Jackson recorded in his secret journal that the leadership (including George, Levi and James Colbert and two others) had accepted $20,000 to move things along. The lion's share of $8,500 each supposedly went to Levi and George Colbert. The money allegedly represented payment for improvements made on the 1816 reserves of Levi and George Colbert. Did this amount to a bribe, especially since it was made secretly? Most American historians agree that it was. Some Chickasaws today see it another way. That the payments were made secretly was Jackson's idea. He believed if the tribal members discovered that their leaders had been bribed, they would be killed or removed from office. Perhaps they would have been had tribal members believed that the Colberts had taken money to do the bidding of the U.S.

If the brothers received and pocketed the money, either the tribal members never found out (unlikely in an open society) or they felt that the Colberts by virtue of their position and work, had earned the money. If the Chickasaw believed that their leaders had sold them out, the Colberts most likely would have been executed or assassinated.

Kerry Armstrong, a family historian and Colbert descendant who maintains a Chickasaw research site on the Internet (chickasawhistory.com), calls the land grants and money "expected presents," rather than bribes. These presents, he says, "were a way of political life that had been fostered on the Chickasaw by the English, French, Spanish and the U.S. The Indians had been taught to expect presents in one form or another in dealing with their great father." The Chickasaw had learned that the U.S. government was always willing to pay a little more to get a job done, as it still does today. Despite the internal tribal threats, the Chickasaw leaders did sell the remainder of their land north of the Tennessee River (mainly western Tennessee and Kentucky) for $20,000 annually for fifteen years. To get this large tract of land, Jackson's biographer, Robert Remini, wrote that Jackson had "resorted to bribery, the deliberate and unconscionable withholdings of annuities and false [and malicious] statements of fact."

The Chickasaw were left with their homeland in northeastern Mississippi and northwestern Alabama and the vain hope that they could continue to live in their ancient homeland in peace.

Cultural Changes

A year later, traveler Adam Hodgson passed through the Chickasaw homeland and spent time with one family. The husband talked disconsolately, his speech, a harbinger of the tribe's dim future in the homeland. The man told Hodgson that "great changes had taken place among Indians," even in his life time. When he was young, "the children were made to plunge in the water, at daybreak and swim, in the coldest weather; and were then collected on the bank of the river to learn the manners and customs of their ancestors, and hear the old men recite the traditions of their forefathers." They were assembled "again at sunset for the same purpose and were taught to regard as a sacred duty the transmission to their posterity of the lessons thus acquired. The custom is all but abandoned now. The whites having undermined it. Only here and there, an old ancient fellow still upholds the way."
